Sunrise and sunset on the 15th of each month, UK clock time. Helicopters fly by sight and cannot use an unlit site after dark, so the last flight of the day is planned back from sunset. If a flight is cancelled because of the weather, you pay nothing.

WHAT THE SOURCES SAY ABOUT LANDING

A hotel guide lists two helipads at Chewton Glen, and a pilot-information site lists the hotel as a landing spot where prior permission is required. We have not found a statement from the hotel itself, so we treat both as indications, not a standing arrangement. The hotel's helicopter policy, its pad locations and the notice it wants are what we ask first, and the answer is confirmed to you in writing before you book.

THE APPROACH AND THE AIRSPACE

Pilot information notes that the hotel is just outside the Bournemouth control zone and that an approach from the north or north-east over open country is the usual routeing. That is the sort of detail a pilot checks on the day, along with the weather on the Hampshire coast, which can differ markedly from London. We plan the route with the pilot, speak to air traffic control where needed, and have an alternative.

WHY PEOPLE FLY HERE

The hotel's website describes a five-star country-house hotel and spa in the New Forest with rooms, suites and woodland treehouse suites, wood-fired dining and a spa with pools. By road from London it is a drive of two hours or more each way; the helicopter turns it into a morning journey and makes a one-night stay possible without losing a day.

- ☐ Best for: a weekend away or an overnight stay; lunch plus the spa is possible if daylight allows.
- ☐ Best season: spring to autumn; winter works with a morning flight and a daylight return.
- ☐ Plan for: a coastal weather check; sea fog and low cloud can affect the Solent side even when London is clear.
